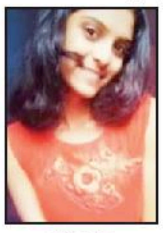
Wild elephant tramples PU student to death in Kodagu

Kushalnagar, Mar. 1 (AG & BCT)- A first-year Pre-University student was trampled to death by a wild elephant near Bettathur village in Kodagu district last evening.



Pooja

The victim has been identified as Pooja (19), daughter of Changappa and Devaki, residents of Bettathur near Madikeri. She was a student of St. Michael's Composite PU College.

According to family members, Pooja was walking home with her mother when the tragedy struck. Devaki works as a cook at the Chettukaya Valmiki Ashram School near Karike in Bhagamandala and visits her home in Bettathur once a fortnight.

After completing her annual examinations on Feb. 19, Pooja stayed at her Bettathur residence for a few days before accompanying her mother to Karike on Feb. 23.

Last evening, the mother and daughter were returning to Bettathur and Changappa had gone on his motorcycle to Cherambane to bring them home. However, as they approached their house, the steep stretch of road made it difficult for all three to travel together on the bike.

Changappa asked his wife and daughter to alight and walk while he rode ahead. It was then that a wild elephant suddenly charged at them. The animal reportedly dragged Pooja away and trampled her.

Hearing Devaki's screams, Changappa rushed back to the spot but found his daughter grievously injured. Pooja was immediately shifted to the District Hospital in Madikeri, where she succumbed to her injuries.

A resident of Vijayanagar 4th Stage, Mysuru, Shiksha is the daughter of Sangeeta Yadav & Sadguru Sharan, a Scientific Assistant at Rare Materials Project (RMP), Bhabha Atomic Research Centre (BARC), Mysuru.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

GUIDE TO SARANAGATI: Saranagati (surrender to God) is best done through an acharya or guru. We do not have the capacity to perform saranagati ourselves. Therefore, we surrender to an acharya who knows everything and perform saranagati to Perumal through him. It is called Pancha Samskaram. In some sampradayas, they also perform 'Bharanyasam' separately, while in some others, they do Bharanyasam after Pancha Samskaram, said Tirukkudanthai Dr. Venkatesh.

After performing Saranagati to Perumal, all one needs to have is 'maha viswasam': the belief that Perumal will take care of one, irrespective of the situation. Many devotees assume that because they observe practices such as sandhyavandhana, reciting Vedas, visiting temples, being part of namasankeertans, listening to discourses, they will attain moksha. Such a thought should be dismissed but the practices should be continued with more fervour. Give up the thought that they alone help in reaching moksha and hold on to Perumal as our sole refuge. He gives us the most treasured moksha. As a mere mortal, we should realise that and perform all services that are possible during this lifetime. We reach Him only through His divine grace (Mam ekam saranam vraja). Bhagawan, in turn, assures us, Aham tvam sarva papebhyo mokshayishayami (He will remove all our sins) and orders us not to worry (ma shuchah). The belief we get wholeheartedly is saranagati.

There are five aspects to saranagati. We should do what pleases Perumal. We should refrain from doing what Perumal dislikes. Have a strong belief that He will take care of us. Without this belief, saranagati is invalid. One should realise Perumal is the sole refuge, no one else. —In The Hindu

Ant queens that reproduce without males

Tokyo: Temnothorax kinomurai is a species of parasitic ants that lacks both workers and males, consisting exclusively of queens.

Temnothorax kinomurai, a species of ant endemic to Japan, is unlike any ant species we know about. It consists only of queens and reproduces asexually, with the queens essentially creating clones of themselves from unfertilized eggs.

Scientists have been suspecting that T. kinomurai reproduces asexually for decades, but those suspicions were only recently confirmed by a team of Japanese-German researchers who took 43 queen eggs and bred the offspring in laboratory conditions, observing their behaviour.

World's oldest pool player strong at 98

Las Vegas: A Florida woman who became the world's oldest competitive pool player at the age of 94 is still going strong at 98 and is headed to a tournament in Las Vegas.

Jensen Beach resident Maggie Kennedy was dubbed the world's oldest competitive pool player by Guinness World Records in 2021, and five years later she and her team, Sunday Funday, are headed to the BCA Nationals Pool League Tournament in Las Vegas.

The local pool-playing community came together at Raxx Billiards in Stuart to donate 2,000 dollars for Kennedy to fly to Vegas first-class. Kennedy credited good genetics with contributing to her active lifestyle.

"I fell in love with the game. I think it's because I'm old, I think that surprises people. I come from good, hearty New England stock. I was taught to be nice and be happy, and here I am," Kennedy said.

VOICE OF THE READER

Stop digging up roads without restoration

Sir,

Frequent road-cutting by utility contractors has become a daily nuisance for commuters across Mysuru. Be it for drainage lines, water pipelines, telephone cables or broadband works, roads are dug up again and again.

In most cases, once the work is completed, the trenches are merely filled with loose soil and left without proper re-asphalting. This leaves behind uneven stretches, potholes and bumpy patches that inconvenience motorists and pose safety risks.

What frustrates residents even more is that newly laid roads are often dug up within weeks for such works, defeating the very purpose of road improvement.

During summer, these loosely filled patches create excessive dust, troubling pedestrians and nearby residents. In the rainy season, the same stretches turn slippery and hazardous due to loose mud.

The authorities must enforce strict restoration norms, penalise contractors who fail to comply and ensure better coordination to minimise repeated road-cutting.

Pay more to transport luggage in KSRTC buses

Bengaluru, Mar. 1 (DM)- In a move to augment revenue, the Karnataka State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) has increased luggage charges on its buses by 15 percent, with the revised rates coming into effect from Feb. 16. The hike applies to luggage carried along with passengers as well as unaccompanied consignments.

Under the revision, minimum luggage charge has been raised from Rs. 5 to Rs. 6 for stages 1-5, while the maximum charge has increased from Rs. 123 to Rs. 145 for stages 156-160.

Although the State Government had increased passenger bus fares by 15 percent with effect from Jan. 5, 2025, luggage rates had remained unchanged. The previous revision to luggage charges was made in 2021.

The revised rates apply to bags, sacks and other packages weighing more than 30 kg per person, with charges varying according to the stage of travel. Overall, the latest revision increases the minimum rate by Rs. 1 and the maximum by Rs. 22.

AI cannot replace teachers' role in education: Aisshwarya DKS Hegde

Mysuru, Mar. 1 (MK&BS)- Aisshwarya DKS Hegde, patron and incubator, Teacher360, has said that the role of teachers is still pivotal in imparting education, amid the incorporation of Artificial Intelligence (AI) in the education sector.

She was speaking on the topic 'I Learn As I Lead' in a power talk organised at Educators Conclave Mysuru 2026, by Teacher Tribe and Teacher360, at Jagannatha Centre for Art and Culture (JCAC) in city this morning.

Aisshwarya DKS Hegde, making a power-point-presentation, at Educators Conclave Mysuru- 2026, organised by Teacher Tribe and Teacher360, at Jagannatha Centre for Art and Culture in city, this morning.

AI may inform more than what an individual can say, but it still knows no difference between what is sensible and nonsense. Hence, the onus will be on the teachers to teach what is required for the benefit of students, she added, in her Power-Point presentation.

"In an AI-driven world, adaptability is a matter. But the real challenge lies in how to channelise the energy of children into acquiring knowledge. If the teachers are happy, the classes will be lively," Aisshwarya pointed out about how the system of education is teacher-centric.

Giving a clarion call to fellow academicians to build the education system, which is indeed a bigger responsibility, leveraged by a continuous process, Aisshwarya said, 'School timings may change, so also teachers, but the discipline should remain intact.'

Underlining that communicating with children in a better manner holds the key to making teaching and learning effective, Aisshwarya drew an analogy between the past and present, as in those days, there were instances of children studying under street light.

"Now, the children have all the facilities, which should be utilised by them to attain progress in their lives," she noted.

Earlier, Pickbrain Giri Balasubramanian, Founder, Teacher Tribe and Mentor, Teacher 360 delivered welcome address.

Rising human-wildlife conflict near Bandipur

50 villagers join forest patrols as 'Kaadina Mitras'

Mysuru, Mar. 1 (MTY&BCT)- With incidents of human-wildlife conflict on the rise in villages bordering the Bandipur Tiger Reserve, the Forest Department has launched a new initiative titled 'Kaadina Mitra' (friends of the forest), roping in local villagers to assist in patrolling and preventing wild animals from straying out of the Reserve.

The Hediyala, Moleyur, Nugu and N. Begur forest ranges have been identified as highly sensitive zones, where tiger and elephant attacks have resulted in human fatalities in recent years.

In a bid to prevent further incidents, the Department has introduced a system under which selected villagers patrol alongside Forest personnel. Acting on the directions of Forest Minister Eshwar B. Khandre, Chief Conservator of Forests S. Prabhakaran of Bandipur consulted wildlife experts before implementing the 'Kaadina Mitra' scheme. As part of the initiative, 50 experienced farmers from forest-fringe villages in conflict-prone areas have been appointed as 'friends of the forest' on a daily-wage basis. Their primary role is to strengthen surveillance and enhance monitoring in areas vulnerable to tiger and elephant movement.

Tiger Rapid Response Force

In villages along the forest edge that have witnessed fatal tiger attacks, the Department has constituted 25 additional patrol units under the banner of Tiger Rapid Response Force.

Each unit comprises two 'Kaadina Mitra' volunteers and two Forest staff members. The four-member teams patrol sensitive stretches and keep vigil for any signs of wild animals moving toward human settlements.

Members of Tiger Rapid Response Force have been equipped with jackets, batons, machetes, torches, loudspeakers, firecrackers & walkie-talkies. If animals are spotted near boundary, the teams attempt to drive them back into forest. Walkie-talkies enable quick communication & mobilisation of additional personnel when required.

Beyond patrolling, the teams are also conducting awareness drives in forest-edge villages. Farmers are advised not to venture into forest areas or graze cattle close to the boundary. If entry into the forest is unavoidable, they are urged to move in groups. Villagers are also instructed to immediately alert Forest officials if tiger pug marks are noticed near agricultural fields.

Officials say 'Kaadina Mitra' prog. has fostered better coordination between Forest staff and local communities. Volunteers gain first-hand understanding of efforts to mitigate conflict & help spread awareness among residents, making community participation a key pillar of the initiative.

Volunteers drive back elephant at Saragur

In one recent instance in Saragur, a team comprising 'Kaadina Mitra' volunteers and Forest staff successfully drove back an elephant that had attempted to move out of the forest.

Using loudspeakers and firecrackers, the team managed to push the animal back into the reserve. The same group also assisted in capturing a partially blind elephant that had earlier killed an elderly villager, drawing appreciation from officials for their timely intervention.

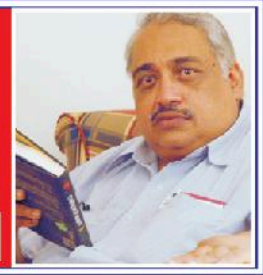
Over a cup of evening Tea



By Dr. K. Javeed Nayeem, MD

Revisiting my most memorable rail journey!

Last weekend, I had written about how I made a friend while travelling on a train by exchanging books with her and then tragically lost her too. I had also asked my readers to stay tuned to the remaining part of my narration about another memorable train journey and so here I am.

Sometimes strange things happen, which seem very unusual and this is one such episode. As a medical student, early one summer, I was travelling by train to Gulbarga where I was studying, when a foreigner got into my compartment at Raichur and settled down with his knapsack on the window seat opposite mine, after flashing his smile at me with a nod of his head, as most foreigners do.

Although what he was carrying in the knapsack was not known to me, I could surmise what it perhaps contained, because of the unusually large tripod which was strapped to it. It told me that whatever he was in life, he certainly had to be a serious photographer too.

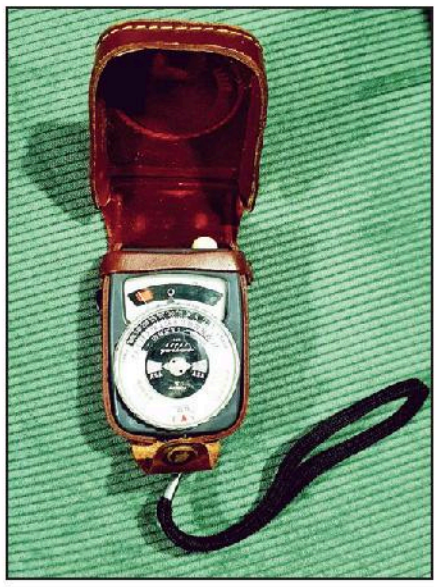
And, from the name Manfrotto on his tripod and the name Tucano on his knapsack, I could also guess that he was most likely an Italian.

Although most foreigners, unlike we Indians, do not start conversations with strangers easily, he turned out to be a little different because as he fanned himself with his cap he turned to me and said, "Oh! Isn't it unbearably hot here these days?" I said it indeed was, with much hotter days to come very soon. He introduced himself as a priest from Italy, on his third trip to India.

This opening was enough for me because as a fellow photography enthusiast, I was waiting for a break to start a conversation with him about our hobbies. I asked him if he was having a good time visiting places in India and photographing them, when he told me that he indeed had a very good time till his camera broke down the previous day.

That was a second lucky break for me to continue our conversation further, when he told me that this time he was visiting all the Bahamani Forts and monuments. He had just finished with visiting the fort at Raichur and was heading to do the same at Gulbarga.

He however regretted that now with his only camera dysfunctional, he would have to be content with just visiting the monuments, without being able to photograph them. He told me that a photographer in Raichur had told him that the nearest place where he could hope to get his camera repaired was in Bombay, when I told him that he had received the right information.



The gifted Gossen exposure meter.

His predicament which had left him crestfallen, began looking like an interesting situation to me. When I told him that I too was a photography enthusiast who could as a hobby, maintain and also repair and set right minor snags in cameras, his face brightened with a look of great surprise.

He quickly opened his knapsack and retrieved his camera which was a German Leicaflex SL, a very recent model then, which seemed to be in pristine condition. To give him the reassurance that it was quite safe for him to allow me to even touch his camera, I retrieved my own camera from my bag and showed it to him.

While his was a West German flagship product, mine being a Practica Super TL, was an East German one, from right across the Berlin Wall, which was then still dividing the two countries, though not the spirit of its people! And, while my camera was a very modestly priced one, his was at least ten times costlier than mine.

Yes, Leica cameras have always been and still are, among the costliest cameras in the world and so any Leica owner can rightfully feel proud that what he has in his hands is absolutely the world's best camera.

It is a different matter that the best cameras in the world do not necessarily produce the best photographs in the world, unless the person behind the camera too has the 'seeing eye' and the talent that makes them outstanding!

After seeing my camera, the man handed me his Leica and asked me to take a look at it and see if I could understand what was wrong with it.

Not very surprisingly, my cursory external inspection, did not give me the slightest clue to the problem, beyond letting me know that there was one, because it was not working. But going by the gut feeling deep inside me, that a robust machine like a hardly used Leica, could not develop a serious mechanical failure, I reassured the owner that it was most likely to be a very minor glitch.

Very visibly reassured, he asked me if I could try to set it right upon reaching Gulbarga, when I said that I would certainly be happy to attempt it.

I was so moved by the man's distress that I impulsively told him that while I worked on his camera, he was welcome to take my camera along with him and complete all his photography in and around Gulbarga, over the two days he would be staying there.

With a Leica, functional or dysfunctional, in my hands, it certainly would not matter in whose hands my humble Practica would be! He was so overcome by gratitude at my offer that he immediately bowed before me with his two hands together in a Namaste and said that I had come as a saviour to him.

We reached Gulbarga at four in the late afternoon when I took him to my room and told him to leave his belongings there and head out with my camera to make the most of the evening light which would have a most flattering effect on the monuments he wanted to see.

Yes, the late evening and the early morning hours have even earned the sobriquet of 'The Golden Hours' in photographic parlance because of this effect and most photographers try to do all their planned photography at this time.

After the man left with my camera, I lost no time and started working on his camera. To look at its innards, I unscrewed the bottom plate and gently lifted it off, when suddenly the camera clicked on its own, almost giving me a jolt! When I cranked the film wind lever and clicked it a few times, it was working perfectly, as if nothing was wrong with it.

After shaking it to make sure that there were no loose parts inside, I replaced the bottom plate and operated all the dials and knobs and clicked it at least a hundred times when it worked flawlessly, faithfully upholding its worldwide reputation for robustness and reliability!

When its owner returned in the late evening, happy with the fruitful time in the Gulbarga fort but still visibly anxious about his camera, I made him sit down and suppressing all my elation and sense of accomplishment, I picked up his camera and just clicked it.

He nearly jumped with joy and grabbed my hand and shook it, thanking me profusely on what I had done and asked me what had gone wrong with it.

I narrated exactly what had happened during his absence and how his camera had set itself right without the need for any real repair. He sat staring at the camera in his lap for a long time and asked me very apologetically how much he could pay me for my job.

When I told him that I was not a professional camera repairer and would not take any money for what I had done, he requested that I should at least accept a small gift from him, which would make him happy.

Seeing how emotionally moved he was, I did not have the heart to refuse his offer. He then rummaged into his bag and pulled out something and pressed it into my hand, with both his hands.

It was a Gossen Exposure Meter, another great German flagship brand, known for its accuracy and reliability in making perfect exposures, especially while taking landscape photos and portraits. In those days, it was a gadget that was hard to find but much sought after by most serious photographers and which could be seen only in the hands of professional cinematographers.

My happiness matched my newfound, rail journey friend's and his gift, which had his name written on it, has remained with me to this day, serving me faithfully, true to its great reputation, which it shares with its country cousin, the great Leica itself!

US-Israeli air strikes

Iran Supreme Leader Ayatollah Khamenei killed

Mob vandalises US embassy in Karachi; protest erupts in Lucknow; Alipur in Karnataka observes bandh

New Delhi, Mar. 1 (Agencies)- Three US Embassy staff at Karachi in Pakistan were reportedly injured after Shia Muslim protesters attacked the American embassy, following the killing of Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Khamenei in US and Israeli strikes.

Khamenei

Earlier this morning, the Iran's State media confirmed that Supreme Leader Ali Khamenei has been killed, after attacks across Iran by Israel and the US, which began on yesterday morning.

A statement from Iran's Supreme National Security Council, read out by several State broadcast channels, confirmed Ayatollah Khamenei was killed in his office. Visuals of the incident of mob vandalising the entrance area of US consulate and setting parts of the building ablaze, surfaced on social media.

Guards open fire: The situation escalated further when security forces, including guards at the Consulate, reportedly opened fire on the protesters. Local reports indicate multiple casualties, with one source claiming up to 10 civilians were killed in the gunfire.

Gunshots were heard as staff at the diplomatic mission pushed back the mob, though it remains unclear whether the firing originated from Pakistani security or US personnel.

In Baghdad: Meanwhile, protesters also gathered outside the US Embassy in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad, as tensions soared in the Middle East amid the renewed military confrontation.

Protest in Lucknow: Shia Muslims took to the streets at Lucknow in Uttar Pradesh, to protest against the killing of Khamenei.

Bandh in Karnataka village: The Alipur village in Gauribidanur taluk of Chikkaballapur district in Karnataka, observed bandh as residents mourned the death of Khamenei, whom they regarded as their spiritual authority.

From today early morning, shops and roadside stalls were shut, with traders suspending their businesses. The people gathered in groups, with some of them holding Khamenei's portraits, shedding tears and chanting religious slogans.

Wild elephant tramples PU student to death

The incident triggered anger among villagers, who staged protests against the Forest Department. Residents alleged that despite repeated complaints about frequent elephant movement in Bettathur and surrounding areas, authorities had failed to take effective preventive measures.

Villagers said that in the second week of February, a youth returning home from work at a resort was seriously injured in a similar elephant attack on the same road and had narrowly escaped death.

Deputy Conservator of Forests Abhishek told SOM this morning that while the 100-metre forest buffer zone falls under the Madikeri Division, the adjoining forest area comes under the jurisdiction of Nagarahole Tiger Reserve. "The Rapid Response Team has rushed to the spot and efforts are underway to drive the elephant back into the forest," he said.

Couple from Mysuru die in road accident

K.R. Nagar, Mar. 1 (BS)- A couple from Mysuru city met with their tragic end, after their two-wheeler was allegedly knocked down by a car near Kaggare-Narayanapur here on Friday. The deceased have been identified as Nanjunda Somachar (51) and his wife Netravathi (48), natives of Beeranahalli, Hangod in Hunsur.

They were residing with their daughter Meghana, at Subramanya Nagar, Hebbal 3rd Stage in Mysuru city. Somachar was working as the centring supervisor of construction workers.

Following the death of their relative at Muttakada Hosur near Ramanathapur in Arkalgud of Hassan, the couple was going on a motorcycle, to attend the funeral. They were travelling via Yelwal, Sagarkatte, Narayanapur and Kaggare Road, when a high speeding car, which came from the opposite direction, rammed into their vehicle. Impact of the accident was such that, the couple was thrown away, resulting in their severe injuries. Though the arrangements were made to shift them to General Hospital in an ambulance, they succumbed to their injuries en route.

Nanjunda Somachar & Netravathi

K.R. Nagar Town Police Inspector Shivaprakash and staff rushed to the spot and seized the motorbike and car involved in accident. Bodies were handed over to relatives after post-mortem at the General Hospital. Ravikumar, son of the deceased, has lodged a complaint with K.R. Nagar Police.

Stadium plan at KSIC Filature Factory land

T. Narasipur Bandh next?

Former Councillor Arjun warns of intensifying the stir; farmer leader Chandan Gowda confident of CM reversing the proposal

T. Narasipur, Mar. 1 (BS) - Actor and former T. Narasipur Councillor Arjun Ramesh has warned of calling for T. Narasipur bandh, if the State Government continues to remain nonchalant towards the indefinite protest being staged by the employees of KSIC Filature Factory at Bhyrapura here, where the Department of Youth Empowerment and Sports, plans to build a stadium, using a part of the land belonging to the factory.

Ever since the stadium proposal came to light, factory workers have been skipping work and staging a stir with a slogan - Save Factory - for the past nine days, with political party leaders and environmentalists joining them. However, the Government continues to turn a blind eye towards the raging issue, without clarifying its stand on the stadium proposal, said Arjun.

Arjun said, he would be meeting the merchants in the town, seeking their support to the bandh call, no matter if it requires to fall at their feet.

President of Karnataka Rajya Raita Kalyana Sangha Chandan Gowda, vouched not to allow any leaders to shut down the Filature Factory, that was established by the Maharaja of Mysore.

"Even if the Chief Minister or Prime Minister says, we won't budge from our stand and will retain the factory, that has been feeding hundreds of employees and their dependents," said Chandan Gowda.

Instilling confidence among protesting factory workers, Chandan Gowda exuded confidence that the Chief Minister may revoke the decision on proposal pertaining to stadium, after having a re-look into the proposal. Presently, the CM seems to be not fully aware of the pros and cons related to the stadium plans, he added.

Parisara Balaga State Secretary Parashurame Gowda, Mysore Grahakara Parishat Hon. Secretary Prabha Nandish, farmer leader Kiragasur Shankar, C.D. Venkatesh, Prasad Nayak and others were present.

MUDA scam: I was offered Rs. 50 crore to keep quiet, claims RTI activist

Krishna

Bengaluru, Mar. 1 (DM)- Social and RTI activist Snehamayi Krishna has claimed that he was offered Rs. 50 crore to keep quiet regarding the multi- crore MUDA (Mysuru Urban Development Authority) alternative sites allotment scam, involving the Chief Minster's family and top officials.

Snehamayi Krishna made this allegation when he deposed before the Special Court for Elected Representatives at Bengaluru yesterday, which is hearing the MUDA alternative sites allotment scam case.

Charging the accused persons named in the case of making efforts to silence him through all means,Krishna told the Court that a person claiming to be a personal assistant of the Chief Minister offered him Rs. 50 crore as bribe. Besides, two persons named Harsha and Srinidhi had brought money bags to offer him. Though he submitted a video record of the incident to the Bengaluru Police Commissioner, no action has been taken so far. This apart, he suspects that black magic has been performed on him by sacrificing a goat, Krishna alleged.

Venting his anger against Bengaluru Cyber Crime Police, Krishna said that the Cyber Police apprehended him when he came to Bengaluru Court for hearing. "The Police whisked me away though I assured of appearing before them after completion of the Court hearing. Though I was not officially arrested, the Police issued a press notification saying that I was 'arrested', which was a blow to my dignity", he argued.

Judge expresses disappointment

During the hearing, the Special Court Judge pulled up the Prosecution for the delay in investigation of former MUDA Commissioner D.B. Natesh, a prime accused in the case. The judge questioned why the prosecution had not taken any action though it was given nod last November itself for action against Natesh, under Section 17a of PC Act. The Judge also expressed deep disappointment over the Prosecution's failure to provide the status of the investigation.

The Judge upon hearing Snehamayi Krishna's argument, directed him to lodge a separate complaint regarding the bribe money offered to him. The Judge also said that Krishna can file a higher appeal if he was not happy with the Lokayukta B- Report. The Court further ordered for personal appearance of the Special Public Prosecutor during the next hearing in the case.

Farmers withdraw day-night dharna

Mysuru, Mar. 1 (GA&DM)- Farmer leader Honnur Prakash of Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha (KRRS - Samoohika Nayakatva) said that the day-night dharna launched by farmers seeking fulfilment of their demands and evacuation of illegal resorts that have come up at Kabini backwaters, has been temporarily withdrawn following an assurance by officials on meeting farmer demands.

Addressing a press meet here yesterday, Honnur Prakash said that officials have said that they would write to the Centre on Gomala and forest lands. They have also assured of launching a Podi Durasti initiative in Chamarajanagar district soon, he noted.

Alleging that the KRRS has identified six resorts that have come up illegally in Kabini back waters, Prakash said that the district administration has promised to evacuate them in a month.

Accusing Forest Minister EShwar Khandre of receiving money for allowing the re-launch of Safari in wildlife forest reserves, he said that the KRRS was ready to launch a movement against the permission given for Safari.

Advocate Ravikumar, leaders Manjukiran, Parameshwar, Suresh and Manjanna were present at the press meet.

Attempt to sell ganja

One held, 25.06 kg of narcotic substance worth Rs. 12.52 lakh seized

Mysuru, Mar. 1 (PM&KS)- Udayagiri Police have arrested one among the two persons who were trying to sell ganja and have seized 25.06 kg ganja worth Rs. 12.52 lakh from him besides launching a hunt to nab the other, who is absconding.

The arrested has been identified as 26-year-old Y. Varun of Channarayapatna. His accomplice who is absconding is Shabeer.

On Feb. 24, when Udayagiri Police were patrolling at Srinidhi Layout in Rajivnagar 2nd Stage, they saw two persons with a scooter in a suspicious manner during which Shabeer sped away in the scooter while the Cops caught hold of Varun.

When the Cops interrogated Varun, he is said to have told the Police that Shabeer had purchased ganja and they both were trying to sell it.

The Police who had seized the bag which was with Varun inspected the contents in it and found two packets containing 13.485 kg and 11.575 kg ganja respectively and seized it.

Udayagiri Police, who have registered a case, have launched a hunt to nab Shabeer.

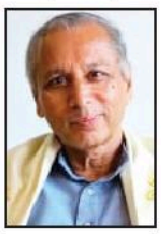
Lectures on 'Paduka Sahasram'



Dr. Nagaraja Rao

Mysuru, Mar. 1- Parampare, in association with Sudharma - Sanskrit Daily Newspaper, has arranged lectures on 'Paduka Sahasram of Sri Vedanta Desika (1269- 1369) by eminent Sanskrit Scholar Vidwan Dr. H.V. Nagaraja Rao.

These lectures are being arranged at BSS Vidyodaya auditorium in Krishnamurthypuram from Mar. 2 to 8 everyday from 6 pm to 8 pm.

Sri Vedanta Desika is the author of more than 150 works in Sanskrit, Prakrut and Tamil. His works played a major role in preserving and revival of spiritual tradition of India. 'Paduka Sahasram' essentially deals with Bhakti (devotion) and Prapatti (surrender) to the Lord. This consists of 1008 superb verses which are generally categorised under 32 paddhaties (chapters). Dr. Rao will enunciate some of the selected shlokas.

At an early age of twenty, Desikar had completed his study of vedas and was already teaching Shreebhashya. His commentaries firmly established the school of Visishtadwaitha of Bhagavan Ramanujacharya. Though his maiden name was Venkatanatha, his literary works brought him fame as 'Vedanta Desika' and 'Kavitarkika Kesari.'

'Paduka Sahasram' is essentially a stotra kavya. In this genre, there is more of devotion and less of poetic merit. But Desika's compositions are exceptionally poetic too. To compose 1008 verses addressed to the 'Padukas' of the Lord is exceptional indeed.

Desikar says that the first person to realise the significance of the Lord's Paduka was Bharata who brought them to Ayodhya and placed them on the throne. Desikar offers salutations to Bharata first in this text.

It is said that in 'Paduka Sahasram,' Vedanta Desikar's poetic talent reaches the ultimate — all the aspects of verse such as Alankara, Guna, Rasa, Bhava. Dhwani and ouchitya are in perfect blend here. Other poets of 17th Century were influenced to write similar verses like Lakshmi Sahasra and Uma Sahasra.

Vid. Dr. H.V. Nagaraja Rao is a presidential awardee and is a senior Sanskrit Scholar and a Visiting Professor in the Universities of Israel and the USA. He has been a guiding force to many students studying Sanskrit within India and abroad. He has been guiding 'Sudharma' Sanskrit Daily for more than 40 years as its Honorary Editor. His weekly column on literature and Indian culture in 'Mysuru Mithra' has been very popular.
